

Lady Jennifer Jarrett is a native of Kingston, Jamaica who grew up in Brooklyn, New York. From an early age God guided her under godly leadership that loved her and lead her to understand that although she lived a “good moral life,” she was still a sinner in need of a Savior. Jennifer is still in awe of the love of her Savior and His goodness in her life. A natural server, she served in many ministries in her home church before marrying her husband (Bishop Woodrow Jarrett) and becoming a military spouse.

Jennifer’s natural love for people and her desire to help them live their best lives led her to obtain her Master’s in Social Work from New York University. Working in her field, as well as being a military spouse, provided diverse experiences within the nonprofit, military, and religious communities. Jennifer was an active military spouse providing support to her fellow military wives and families, earning her the President’s Call to Serve Award. Although no longer working as a social worker, Jennifer continues to operate in one of her strengths as a connector. She strives to connect and empower individuals with the spiritual and practical resources to minister to their mind, body and soul.

Jennifer is a dedicated helpmate who currently serves along her husband at the River of Life Church in Waycross, GA. She sits on the South Georgia Women’s Discipleship Board and has served on the SERF Women’s Discipleship Board since 2014.

Jennifer has been married to Bishop Woodrow Jarrett for twenty nine years. Together, they have four young adult; Alexis, Chelsea, Caleb Joshua and Kayla. Her greatest delight is spending every opportunity with her family, creating memories and leaving legacies.
